---

An image of a map providing a visual of diversions for heavy goods vehicles and cars as well as the road closure is displayed.

The map features the A691 in the north, the A1M in the east, the A688, A689 and A679 in the south and the A68 and B6301 in the west.

The road closure is represented with a black horizontal line running along the B6300 between Sunderland Bridge and Meadowfield.

The heavy goods vehicle diversion is represented by a pink dotted horizontal line.

For heavy goods vehicles, there is a height restriction of 4.4 metres (or 14 feet six inches) along the A690 which means a diversion is in place from the roundabout at Stonebridge, just south of Neville's cross to access Meadowfield and vice versa.

For heavy goods vehicles travelling south along the A690 from Neville's Cross, they will turn to the B6302 at Stonebridge and follow the diversion through Esh Winning. Vehicles will then join the B6301 to Tow Law and then the B6299 past Stanley Crook. Vehicles should then turn to head east on Stockley Lane ahead of joining the A690 where they can head north to Meadowfield and Langley Moor.

For heavy goods vehicles travelling south along the A690 from Meadowfield, they will continue to travel along the A690 before turning to head west along Stockley Lane. Vehicles will then join the B6299 to Stanley Crook and Tow Law ahead of joining the B6301 to Esh Winning. Vehicles should then head east along the B6302 towards Stonebridge where they can then re-join the A690 towards Neville's Cross.

The car diversion is represented by a green horizontal line with vertical marks.

For traffic heading north on the A167 at Sunderland Bridge and looking to access the A690 both southbound and northbound, the diversion continues along the A167 to Neville's Cross where the vehicle will join the A690 and continue to travel along this road to the other side of the road closure in Meadowfield if the vehicle is travelling southbound.
